this 2007 book examines the possibilities for the rehabilitation of hegelian thought within analytic philosophy from its inception the analytic tradition has in general accepted bertrand russell's hostile dismissal of the idealists based on the claim that their metaphysical views were irretrievably corrupted by the faulty logic that informed them these assumptions are challenged by the work of such analytic philosophers as john mcdowell and robert brandom who while contributing to core areas of the analytic movement nevertheless have found in hegel sophisticated ideas that are able to address problems which still haunt the analytic tradition after a hundred years paul reding traces the consequences of the displacement of the logic presupposed by kant and hegel by modern post fregean logic and examines the developments within twentieth century analytic philosophy which have made possible an analytic re engagement with a previously dismissed philosophical tradition this volume brings out the varieties of forms of philosophical skepticism that have continued to preoccupy philosophers for the past of couple of centuries as well as the specific varieties of philosophical response that these have engendered above all in the work of those who have sought to take their cue from kant wittgenstein or cavell and to illuminate how these philosophical approaches are related to and bear upon one another the philosophers brought together in this volume are united by the thought that a proper appreciation of the depth of the skeptical challenge must reveal it to be deeply disquieting in the sense that skepticism threatens not just some set of theoretical commitments but also and fundamentally our very sense of self world and other second that skepticism is the proper starting point for any serious attempt to make sense of what philosophy is and to gauge the prospects of philosophical progress
