a number of women's issues serve to create novel policy problems that require creative and sometimes unique regulatory and legal responses this book embarks upon a comparative case study approach to explore uk policymaking in the areas of abortion rape prostitution and pornography in turn each chapter engages a different institutional perspective to explore the influence of a range of bodies such as the legal system medical profession civil society police force and mass media the analysis reveals a common thread that runs throughout decision making in these areas a constant balancing act between regulation that purports to protect women and regulation that supposedly reflects female liberation with a continual dance between the labels of criminal and victim being performed by policy actors largely reflective of a dogmatic approach to the status of women it is argued that different institutions retain strongholds over policymaking in these domains prohibiting a joined up approach this has served to perpetuate harmful and negative stereotyping of women's issues and create countless conundrums when the activities of women fall into more than one policy category
